

7 Quick Takes Friday: Changing attitudes, saints' feast days, a visit to Strasburg, celebrating small victories, librarians rule, and the best thing about having a brother

Our 4-year-old decided he didn't want to do yoga at preschool anymore. So he marched up to his yoga teacher and said, "You need to change your attitude." It's awful. I know. And parents should never find their children's rude behavior amusing. So we talked about it over and over, told
