

7 Quick Takes Friday: Meet my new great-nephews, cotton candy grapes, the school year so far, flaming Greek cheese, and my idea for a new reality show

We gained two new great-nephews this week. Before you start doing the math to see how old I might be, I should tell you that they are rats. I've shared here before that our 12-year-old niece has an affinity for rats. Two of her three rats died over the summer, and poor