

7 Quick Takes: When you go to work and watch people break a world record live on The Today Show and other moments from the week

I started my work day at Loyola University Maryland at 4:30 a.m. on Thursday as we prepared to welcome Al Roker and The Today Show to campus. Even typing that, I almost can't believe the day actually happened, but the night before I was more worried I would sleep in