

A dedication

I would like to dedicate this first post to my grandfather who recently passed away. He was very fond of nature and loved watching birds from his window. I took this photograph of a hummingbird from his patio while he watched me from his window last summer. Every time I see this photo, it reminds me of him and the beautiful things God has created for us.

