

(Audio) Interview with Cristo Rey Network president about future of Catholic schools

I sat down with Cristo Rey network president and CEO Robert Birdsell for a frank, wide-ranging discussion about the network, Cristo Rey Jesuit High School here in Baltimore, urban education, the future of Catholic schools and thriving during the economic crisis. It's an enlightening interview about where the network is going and how it's going to get there. For those looking for hope in urban education, look to Cristo Rey.

Enjoy the audio below.