

Beyond the Bell: Service-minded students keep Mount St. Joseph on the ball

By Erik Zygmunt

ezygmunt@CatholicReview.org

Twitter @ReviewErik

"It's easy to recognize the star pupil, the No. 1 student in the class, the star quarterback or shortstop," said David Norton, principal of Mount St. Joseph High School.

The all-boys school in Irvington, however, reserves a special esteem for the service-minded students who make the crowd-pleasing feats possible.

"Service is something our school is about," Norton said. "They're giving their time and energy and want to be a part of something."

Senior Joey Chambers doesn't see himself as forgoing anything.

"I like to be busy," he said.

Chambers has managed and assisted several athletic teams over his four years at Mount St. Joseph, but has a special fondness for basketball, especially close games against Baltimore Catholic League rival St. Frances Academy.

"When we host St. Frances, everyone's all decked out," he said, "everyone has a role."

Chambers found his role early on.

"I figured out a while ago that I couldn't play," he said. "I figured I could help out."

He may be making a career of it. Pat Clatchey, the Gaels' basketball coach, has already reached out on Chambers' behalf to the staff at Mount St. Mary's University, where Chambers will study in the fall.

"I'm excited to be one of the managers next year for the Mountaineers," he said.

While Mount St. Mary's offers a major in sport management, Chambers is thinking business, which, he said, "can open more opportunities."

Also envisioning himself as a decision-maker for a professional sports franchise, fellow senior Tom Hoffmeister has also found managing sports – particularly baseball – to be his sweet spot.

He is an Eagle Scout and black belt in karate, but Hoffmeister said he was "never good" at baseball.

A self-described "shy kid," he is now part of the team. "

Junior Russ Sullivan reads at school liturgies and assists Father Michael Murphy, school chaplain. Whether he enters finance or the priesthood, he is sure of one thing.

"Whoever God wants me to be," he said, "I'm willing to accept it."

Ask Sullivan a banal question Why do you enjoy reading at Mass? – and the answer is anything but.

"It just fascinates me that you're reading the inspired word of God to a congregation," he said. "I'm in awe of that sometimes."

An altar boy since fifth grade at St. John the Evangelist in Severna Park, Sullivan "stepped into more of a leadership role" as a sacristan a few years later, which informed his service at Mount St. Joseph.

Sullivan said his service gives him a "sneak peek" of the priesthood.

While senior Matt Sekira isn't planning a career related to his school service, he's nonetheless in high demand as the resident audio visual expert.

"It's a service to me, personally," Norton said. "If I'm talking to some parents, I don't have to worry about this working or that working."

Sekira's interest in what he calls "just a hobby" began his sophomore year, when he ran the spotlight for the spring musical. As older students taught him "from the ground up" to run the sound board and program the lights, his participation grew.

He enjoys the responsibility, and being behind the spotlight as opposed to in it suits him.

"I'm not someone who likes so much focus on me," he said.

Norton, who coached Gaels' baseball for 31 seasons, said that the contributions of Sekira, Sullivan, Hoffmeister and Chambers are central to the Mount St. Joseph experience.

"It's learning how to handle people," Norton said, "and how to handle different situations."

Also see:

Beyond the Bell: Our Lady of Mount Carmel a national model of service

Beyond the Bell: Mock trial is real competition

Beyond the Bell: Curley Jazz ensemble is more than just music

Beyond the Bell: Mercy sophomore inspires, one teddy bear at a time

Beyond the Bell: St. John's Catholic Prep ski club hits the slopes

Beyond the Bell: Ukaladies strum a happy tune

Beyond the Bell: Loyola Blakefield forensics dominates Baltimore league

Beyond the Bell: Wide-ranging ensembles set apart Spalding's music program

Beyond the Bell: With school-wide support, annual musicals take John Carroll's spotlight

Beyond the Bell: Mount de Sales Club supports the troops

By giving food to neighbors, IND roots holiday - and students - in giving

Beyond the Bell: Social Justice Coalition at Maryvale makes a difference

Beyond the Bell: Seton Keough's A Cappella choir

Beyond the Bell: Catholic High robotics team raises the bar

Beyond the Bell: St. Frances Academy football takes leap of faith

Beyond the Bell: Calvert Hall's peer ministry program makes faith cool