

Camp Me Too helps young people recover from loss

This week's Catholic Review features a story about a bereavement camp put on by the Stella Maris Center for Grief and Loss in mid-May. The camp was really moving and I've provided a video to give some greater insight into what happened and how the children grew during the weekend.