

Father Breighner highlights good people

I have read and re-read Father Breighner's heart warming article (CR, May 21), "Focus On The Good In Life, Not The Evil." It was a well-written story about two women who did nothing but good for others.

I knew Mary McGuirk's husband from a business encounter and after my experience with him, I can well understand how he must have complemented his wife in doing so much good for others. Bill McGuirk was formerly the chief executive officer of a fine Baltimore bank, the type of executive one would have been proud to have known. He and his wife were just two good people that you don't encounter everyday in these times.

Thanks for Father Breighner, for writing about these two good ladies.