

Millennial series applauded

After re-reviewing your four-part series on “Growing Up Millennial,” I can just report that my overwhelming emotion is one of hope. The next generations are seeking somewhere to belong and something in which to believe. For two millennia, the church has been able to respond to new cultures and the changes of time while remaining steadfast on what is true. As church, we must be able to pass along the faith from generation to generation into this new millennia!

Congratulations to Matt Palmer for a masterful job as the writer of the series as well as to your production staff who staged such an attractive presentation of the covers and layout.

Miller is director of the Division of Youth and Young Adult Ministry for the Archdiocese of Baltimore.