

Missal letter hits home

In answer to Kathy Stromberg's letter, (CR, Sept. 30), she is right! With all the problems in the church today, why spend time and money to do something no one wants? Yes, we do want children to understand what the prayers say and from your articles it seems to me the prayers will be harder to understand. Why? Leave the Missal alone and find something worthwhile to spend time fixing, like finding more priests and educating Catholic children in Catholic schools! That would be worthwhile.