

New archbishop's homily is impressive

I send you this email on the feast day of Saint Therese, as I watch on EWTN live satellite television the Installation Mass of your new archbishop in Baltimore. I want to say that I am deeply impressed by Archbishop Edwin O'Brien's homily, which I regard as a model spoken commitment of a pastor intent on guiding the people of his diocese under God.

With all my heart I pray for his success in his new ministry; and for him personally, I wish every happiness in the future.
