

Reflecting on an unforgettable experience at the Pope's Mass in Washington, D.C.

I had the opportunity to attend the Pope's Mass on Sept. 23 in Washington, D.C., with 25,000 of my closest friends.

If you were there too, I'm so very happy for you! If you weren't, I wish you could have been, and I wish we could have crowded together against the barricade as we waited for the Popemobile to pass.

For now, I thought I'd reflect on how the experience has made me think about the beauty and richness of our faith.
