

St. Lea

St. Lea lived in the fourth century. After she became a widow, she went to a Roman monastery and would later become the superior there. Writing after St. Lea's death, St. Jerome praised St. Lea for living such a devout life free of the things of the world. He proposed a life of renunciation.