

VIDEO REPORT: Baltimore remembers the first bloodshed of the Civil War

Last Thursday's issue of The Catholic Review reported on the 150th anniversary of the Pratt Street Riot in Baltimore, a bitter conflict that resulted in the first blood spilled in the Civil War.

The city officially commemorated that event with a procession along Pratt Street this morning. I had a chance to cover it. Check out this video report: