

Where's Magliano?

Tony Magliano's column seems to have disappeared from The Catholic Review. I cannot believe he doesn't have something to write about. Although I didn't always agree with his ideas, his writing did give one pause to think. His passion was clearly evident, especially his passion for life. Bearing in mind the tenth anniversary of 9/11 which just passed, passion for life is deeply to be cultivated.

Where's Tony?
