

My partner and I took the baby on Tuesday, November 8, 2005. I took the baby during periods A,B,C, and D and my partner took the baby during Periods E,F,G, and H. The baby cried once when he was in my care at 9:50 a.m. during my homeroom for about 15-20 minutes. I was getting my books organized for the next class that I had after homeroom when my baby started to cry, I had to literally drop everything that I was doing to care for him. My partner had to carry the carrier to my next class for me so that I was able to hold my baby properly (while also continuing to hold the key inside). The interruption made me feel both excited and relieved. I was excited because it was the first time that my baby cried and I was looking forward to the experience and fulfilling the role that a mother would. I relieved because two periods had gone by already and I was getting worried that something might have been wrong with my baby because it hadn't cried at all.
